A REPORT ON A WEBINAR ON "BODY POLITICS AND POLITICIZING BODIES : WOMEN IN INDIAN WRITING" ORGANIZED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH ON 2ND SEPTEMBER 2020

A webinar on "Body Politics and Politicizing Bodies : Women in Indian Writing" was organized by the Department of English, Vidyanagar College in collaboration with the IQAC, Vidyanagar College on 2nd September 2020 between 3 p.m. and 5-30 p.m. on Google Meet platform. The webinar was graced by the presence of two invited speakers. The first was Prof. Rhea Mitra, an Assistant Professor of English at P. R. Thakur Govt. College, North 24-Parganas, who was followed by Prof. Dipanjan Muhuri, Faculty Member at Ramakrishna Mission Vidyamandira, Belur Math, Howrah.

Prof. Mitra, speaking on "Mary Wollstonecraft : A Counter-Revolutionary in the Guise of a Revolutionary", highlighted the essential paradigmatic shift heralded by her writings, which had a cardinal influence on Indian women writers.

Prof. Muhuri, the second speaker, presenting his views on " 'Making Her' : Interrogating the Cultural Construction of the Female Body in Mahasweta Devi's Breast Stories " reinforced the dichotomy between social demands and the assertion of the individual self, where the body of the woman became the potent playing field of the conflicting issues of subjugation and emancipation.

The presentations were followed by a question-answer session, which enriched the experience of the seventy-odd participants to a great extent. The enlightening exchange ended with a vote of thanks proposed by Prof. Pritthwish Das, a Faculty Member of the Department of English, Vidyanagar College, who was one of the Coordinators of the webinar.
